Like 2.4m Follow @travelmail DailyMail

Slovenia gets ready to 'chase away the

Fit for a princess! Inside the romantic

Bomb scare at Gibraltar Airport

Timelapse shows easyJet plane

Forget digital photo albums,

EasyJet pilot contracts serious

The K perfec

Slovenia gets ready to 'chase away the winter' as locals take to the hills in sheepskin costumes and other bizarre designs (and over 100,000 people are expected to visit for carnival celebrations)

- The carnival, or 'pust' is an annual tradition known as Kurentovanje, celebrating the end of the winter season
- Over 100,000 people visit the town of Ptuj in Slovenia to take part in the celebrations
- Event organised by various ethnological groups who celebrate ancient Slovenian cultural traditions

By JOHN HUTCHINSON FOR MAILONLINE

PUBLISHED: 14:50 GMT, 7 February 2015 | UPDATED: 15:23 GMT, 8 February 2015

505 shares

15 View comments

Most of us are glad to see the back of the winter season, but this group of Slovenians are keen to give it more of a nudge.

To celebrate the nearing of the end of the cold snap, Slovenians and members of various ethnological groups took to the hills to perfect their moves ahead of the annual carnival, the 'pust,' to 'chase away' winter.

Also known locally as Kurentovanje, locals wear traditional masks and costumes to scare off the winter and are arriving in their masses in various towns in the country to honour the tradition.

Scroll down for video

The main figures, called Kurent or Korent, wear massive sheepskin garments and a chain with huge bells around its waist

The carnival celebrates ancient traditions of Slovenia, using a variety of somewhat intimidating dress

Members of the Laufarji Ethnological Society dressed as traditional native characters named 'Ta Terjast' pose ahead of the carnival

The festival will run until February 17 as townsfolk get set to welcome in the spring.

People dress in all sorts of weird and wonderful designs. The main figures, called Kurent or Korent, wear massive sheepskin garments and a chain with huge bells around its waist.

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

RELATED ARTICLES

Soaring against a backdrop of snow, the Chinese Kazakh eagle...

From a £4m 'cube' house in Ibiza to a Seychelles beach...

EasyJet pilot contracts serious strain of salmonella while...

The Skoromati are known as one of the oldest traditional characters in Slovenia, and they help lead the charge to chase away winter.

Numerous events are staged in the country over an 11-day period, and it is thought over 100,000 people will join in the celebration.

Chasing winter away! Slovenian festival, Kurentovanje

MORE VIDEOS

Fun timelapse of easyJet's first change to their look since...

The heart-melting Zao Fox Village in Japan filled with foxes

The $249 intravenous drip which claims to cure hangovers

A member of the Hrusiski Skoromati Ethnological Society dressed as a traditional native character named 'Skopiton', and right, a member of the Liski Pustje Ethnological Society dressed in a native mask and costume named 'Bajer

Members of the Liski Pustje Ethnological Society wearing their native masks named 'Handsome', right is fellow society member 'Ramaston'

The main parade takes place on Shrove Tuesday (February 17) in Ptuj.

The purpose of such events is to preserve and develop a unique cultural heritage and ethnographic tradition.

Kurentovanje adds a touch of mysticism, and is one of the most important traditional events in Slovenia and middle Europe.

A pair of 'Pustjes' practise their chasing as they get set to say goodbye to the winter season in the carnival celebrations

A member of the Kurent Ethnological Society dressed up as a native folklore character named 'Devil', and right, a man dresses as a 'woman carrying a man'

The first festival was thought to have been on Shrove Tuesday back in 1960. The procession leaders were spearmen followed by ploughmen, a bear, fairies, cockerels, and Kurents, all dancing at the sound of music played by a local band.

The performance and customs of each traditional mask were explained to the gathered crowd via loud-speakers.

The event met with tremendous success and aroused general interest which encouraged the organisers to continue.

Share or comment on this article

505 shares

Looks like more fun then messing with a sleeping gr...
by Joe 46

MOST WATCHED NEWS VIDEOS

Patience of a saint! Man endures mum's constant backseat...

Strange worm filmed emerging from dead spiders body

Plough about that! Train hurtles through snow filled tracks

Tragic moment greyhounds crash into traps at Romford stadium

Jibes at the Jihadists: A compilation of ISIS fails

WARNING: Hidden cameras reveal horrific treatment of animals

MOST READ TRAVEL

Timelapse shows easyJet plane getting

Is this the cutest place on earth?

Still wish you were here? The photos

From a £4m 'cube' house in Ibiza to a

Whale of a time! Amazing footage of

EasyJet pilot contracts serious

Perch blueb

Comments (15)

Share what you think

Add your comment

Newest | Oldest | Best rated | Worst rated

View all

The comments below have not been moderated.

maya77, southport, about 9 hours ago

This custom is part of carnival (festive season before the Lent). As somebody said there are similar customs in Croatia, Austria, Bulgaria, Italy, Macedonia, Greece etc.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 7 0

SP123, Salzburg, about 20 hours ago

This is exactly the same as "fasching" which takes place in Austria around this time.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 9 0

Percy Throbbing, Portmeirion, United Kingdom, about 21 hours ago

They're Welsh Rugby supporters drowning their sorrows after last night's game

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 7 1

Mox5, London, United Kingdom, about 22 hours ago

Search Kurents in London on YouTube and you can see the video when they came to London last year for the Slovenian Carnival Party :)

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 11 0

hatchiko, peterborough, United Kingdom, about 22 hours ago

Bit like the straw bear in Whittlesey up here its a good day out with the old tradition still living on.im all for it.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 9 0

M4rkyboy, Falkirk, about 23 hours ago

In Shetland they have the Skeklers who wear a straw costume.Dont know,this reminded me of it.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 15 0

tsvetana, Sofia, about 24 hours ago

The kurenti are some of my favourites from all the variations of this tradition accross Europe. It exists (with regional specifics) here in Bulgaria, also in Macedonia, I know if some similar rituals in Greece, some parts of Croatia, the already mentioned Hungary, also Austria, Switzerland, Spain... It's fascinating how such an old fradition - clearly of pre-Christian origin - has survived intact in so many places accross the continent.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 29 0

posterchild, LA, United States, a day ago

What great culture!

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 47 3

Joey, London, a day ago

In my travel wish list

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 39 2

Susan, Zurich, Switzerland, a day ago

Carneval (=take away meat) is the time before lent. The roots of Carneval are Roman, Celtic, Christian, perhaps Germanic. The Celts had rituals to drive away the winter by dressing up as scary demons and ghosts. Also in Tirol (Austria/Italy) there exist similar traditions like in Slowenia. These are the old forms of Carneval.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 30 3

Joe, Nirvana, United States, a day ago

Looks like more fun then messing with a sleeping groundhog.

New Comment | Reply Click to rate 48 2

View all

The views expressed in the contents above are those of our users and do not necessarily reflect the views of MailOnline.

Add your comment

Enter your comment

By posting your comment you agree to our house rules.

Clear Submit Comment

Who is this week's top commenter? Find out now

MORE TOP STORIES

Back to top

Home | News | U.S. | Sport | TV&Showbiz | Australia | Femail | Health | Science | Money | Video | Travel | Fashion Finder

Sitemap | Archive | Video Archive | Mobile Apps | RSS | Text-based site | Reader Prints | Our Papers | Top of page
Daily Mail | Mail on Sunday | This is Network | Evening Standard | This is Money
Metro | Jobsite | Mail Travel | Zoopla.co.uk | Prime Location

Published by Associated Newspapers Ltd
Part of the Daily Mail, The Mail on Sunday & Metro Media Group

© Associated Newspapers Ltd
Contact us Advertise with us Terms Privacy policy & cookies